Monongahela Soldier, Proven Innocent, To Be Freed From Prison

FAITH OF LADIES BRINGS ITS REWARD

World War Veteran Corporal Clarence L. Massey, unjustly imprisoned, will walk forth from Kansas Prison a Free Man

IS ACCUSED OF MURDER

Lieutenant of United States Army Is Victim—Shooting Occurred In France—Representative Kelly And Others Work For Release

Corporal Clarence L. Massey, aged 28, of Monongahela, who was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., in connection with the murder of an American soldier in France during the World War, will be a free man after August 21, due to the untiring efforts of Mrs. Richard Cannon and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry C. Cannon, both of Monongahela.

During the World War, in 1918, Massey, with a number of comrades, visited a cafe in a small village in France, near a convalescent camp, and during the prevalence of a fight a second lieutenant of the United States army was shot and killed. Massey was arrested for the crime, and although pleading his innocence, was court-martialed and sentenced to be shot. A stay of execution was granted and Massey's sentence changed from death to life imprisonment in Fort Leavenworth. He began his prison term in October, 1918.

During the six years of his imprisonment, Mrs. Richard Cannon and Mrs. Harry C. Cannon, have left nothing undone in effort to gain release for the "boy they knew was innocent." On one occasion, Mrs. Richard Cannon filed and gray-haired woman, made a trip to Washington, D. C., to consult with the Hon. Warren G. Harding, then president of the United States. Mrs. Cannon described Massey as "a gentleman at all times," and firmly believed in his innocence of any crime charged against him. She said Massey had worked for her at the age of 17 on a farm near Monongahela.

When told that the gates of the penitentiary would soon be swung back and Massey would walk forth a free man, Mrs. Cannon was a picture of happiness. She said Representative Kelly of Bradock, who also took part in the young man's fight for freedom, deserves as much credit as anyone in bringing about his release.

The case has attracted wide attention all along the valley for the past six years, particularly so among the people of Monongahela, who lent their aid in bringing about the soldier's release. Massey is the son of Mrs. C. A. Massey of Monongahela, and prior to the World War was one of the city's most popular young men. A Guerre.

CHARGED WITH STEALING RING

Edgar Garbart was arrested Thursday afternoon at Independence, West Virginia by Constable John Eckert of Monongahela, and was taken by him and placed in the Monongahela lockup.

Garbart is charged with the larceny of a diamond ring from the home of his aunt, Mrs. John Legler, New Eagle. It is said that the accused youth has admitted taking the ring from the home of his aunt while visiting her, but stated that he had repented and mailed the ring to Mrs. Legler this week, before action was brought against him.

At a hearing yesterday before Justice J. F. Carmichael, Mrs. Irene Demsky, known as Irene Laprich, of Lincoln Hill, who was arrested several days ago for stealing a pocketbook, was held for court on two charges. She was committed to jail in default of $1,000 bail.

When her home was searched at Lincoln Hill large quantities of dresses, shoes, waists, pocketbooks and other articles were found, some of which have been identified. One of the merchants who made information against her was L. Ochs, but at the hearing yesterday he was unable positively to identify any of the articles as having come from his store.

On June 3, Miss Anna Workman had a pocketbook stolen from her in the Capitol theatre and this led to Mrs. Demsky's arrest by Patrolman Gordon. A card case belonging to Miss Workman was found in possession of the woman when arrested.

She was also charged with having stolen a pocketbook from Miss Eva Tienman. It contained a number of articles, of no value to any one else, such as receipts, and these were found in the street in different sections of the town and returned to Miss Tienman.

TAX COLLECTOR IS CAUGHT

More than 100 pedestrians joined in the chase for the arrest of George C. Miller, aged 37 years, at Homestead. It is alleged that Miller fled numerous foreign-born residents of the mill districts by posing as a tax collector. The Gallatin, Manown, and Axleton sections are mentioned in connection with the man's alleged operations.

It is said that the description given the officers of the law tally with Miller's looks. The chase was one of two-miles, before Miller was captured.

PARENTS MAKING A STRONG BID FOR PUBLIC SYMPATHY

Chicago, June 7.—Both state and at Chicago's office. Both charges carry death penalties. A brief statement, the first official word from the defense was made public last night by fathers of the two boys. The fathers, Nathan Leopold, Sr., president of the Morris Paper Box Co., and Albert H. Loeb, millionaire vice president of Sears Roebuck and Co., pledged themselves to make no attempt to "defeat justice."

The statement was issued, it was said, after the parents had conferred with their lawyers. The parents of the two boys made a strong bid for public sympathy. Should Leopold and Loeb be acquitted of the murder charge "or even would escape a death sentence because found insane," the state will immediately demand a second trial on the kidnapping indictment it was said against Leopold and Loeb.

opinion through Chicago, which has been keenly bitter toward the two millionaire's sons who "just for the fun of it" they said, murdered young Franks. A cynical belief that the boys would escape a death sentence because of the millions spent in their defense has added to the anger over the kidnapping indictment it was said against Leopold and Loeb.

19-YEAR-OLD SLAYERS

Nathan F. Leopold, Jr. (extreme left), and Richard Loeb, principals in America's strangest crime, are seen being questioned by State's Attorney Robert Crowe (between Leopold and Loeb), and Police Capt. William Shoemaker. Admitting that they abducted Robert Franks, 14-year-old cousin of Leopold, with the intent to slay him in cold blood for "the scientific study of reactions." Each of the boys now accuses the other of the actual deed of striking the helpless lad over the head with a tape-wrapped chisel. All three principals—victim as well as defendants—were sons of millionaire parents, the three families totaling over $25,000,000 in combined personal wealth. Leopold, a law student, says: "You know, we have got a lot of dough. I don't know how many millions. How about fixing this thing up by getting a few jurors," but he does realize the seriousness of his crime. While Loeb expressed the opinion that he'd "get a couple of years" but that it would "be the making of him."

The summer school will open July 6 and continue for six weeks closing August 11. From present indications the attendance will surpass all records for previous sessions. Last year 2,024 enrolled.

YOUNG MEN SUFFER HURTS IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Lynn Lowstuter of Charleroi suffered severe cuts on the head and was otherwise bruised, Willis Hendrickson of Monongahela, suffered a fracture of a collar bone, while Robert Downer of Monongahela, had two ribs fractured, when the Ford car they were traveling in turned over while going up Peterman's Hill, out of Bentley.

It is not known what caused the car to turn over, but when doing so it rolled over a hill and the occupants were all thrown out, some of them being pinned under the car. They were all gathered up and given medical treatment and then taken to their home. The car was considerably damaged.

Scouts Presented With a Troop Flag And a United States Flag At An Entertainment Held At Washington Avenue Church

SCOUTS SHOW PROWESS

Give Demonstration of Training They Have Received—Interest In Troop Is Marvelous; Quota Is Filled And More Applications Being Received

The Men's Bible class of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church entertained the Scouts of the church troop last evening. This was one of the most enjoyable events the boys and men have participated in for many months. The evening began with the regular monthly business meeting of the Bible class. The reports given show the class to be in a good healthy condition with a determination to go on to better things. The class has a number of good games scheduled which will be played in the near future. Following the business meeting the Scouts marched in, headed by their Scoutmaster, W. G. Mollenauer, and were presented with both a troop flag and a U. S. flag. The presentation speech was made by Frank Knapenberger, who, in a few well-chosen words, assured the boys of interest felt for them and of the meaning and value of the flags. The flags were received by Scoutmaster Mollenauer, who gave a most interesting review of the beginnings and development of the scout movement in the church and had the Scout give the pledge of allegiance and the Scout oath. The Scouts then gave a splendid exhibition of the value of the training they had received. This consisted of four events, first, a demonstration of first aid, the team chosen for this did its work in the remarkably short time of seven minutes, caring for four major injuries; the second event was a demonstration of the firemen's lift; the third, of the firemen's drag; the fourth and last a demonstration in signaling. The last three events were by three teams of volunteers in each case. At the conclusion of the program the men present realized as never before the value of Scouting to the boy. O. M. Wise, who has taken a very active interest in the work from the beginning, then spoke of the work the boys are doing and of the efficiency of the Scoutmasters, W. G. Mollenauer and John H. Clutter. The class then voted to elect a Scout committee to cooperate with the Troop committee for the advancement of the work. For the boys, the biggest event of the evening was put on by the "kitchen police" of the Bible class. These guardians of appetites had been busy behind the screens and when the proper signal was given, marched forth headed by the "Big Chief," and served up as fine a lunch as ever tickled the palate of man or boy. After some songs by the boys (Continued on page six)

PRESIDENT VETOES THE POSTAL BILL

Washington, D. C., June 7.—President Coolidge today vetoed the $68,000,000 postal salary increase bill. In his message to congress, returning the measure without his approval, the president said, "I cannot sign it because of the expenditures involved." "The government extravagance must be stopped," he said. "The people of the nation are paying all that is possible for them to pay. I am taking my position in relation to the government's economics, which I have stated and restated, until it is now well known."

Ancient Books Show Surgery an Old Art

The practice of surgery goes back as far as the time when man first began to hurt himself or to be hurt by others. Medicine and surgery were flourishing in the Orient some four centuries B. C. Accounts in ancient books tell of more than a hundred instruments of steel, 14 varieties of bandages, and the use of the saw, the sewing of cuts on the head and face; and there was even an operation for removing the nose by using a piece of skin of the cheek for that purpose. So it would seem that the Hindu had a more thorough acquaintance with the science than one looking back over the faraway centuries would at first suspect.

The figures of patients undergoing operations are carved on Egyptian monuments and among the antiquities of that people are such instruments as lancets, probes, knives and forceps. In passing it may be remarked that the latest centuries need not take credit to themselves for the invention of artificial teeth, for that triumph of the dentists' art has been found in mummies.

The surgical skill of the Orient seems to have been bottled up for a time, or, at least it was in no hurry to cross over to Europe, where for a long period the barber was the usual surgeon. The lives of two of England's greatest kings might have been saved for longer usefulness had a little wisdom been shown in their treatment. Henry V died of a malady which could have been cured by the knife; Richard the Lion Hearted met his death from a wound in the shoulder caused by an arrow which an ignorant surgeon aggravated by twisting about in his efforts to remove, thus inducing blood poison.

Make Today Count as No Previous One Ever Did

Make this resolution every morning: I will play the life game today as I have never played it before. I will play it with more energy, more determination. I will play it with firmer decision, with better judgment. But while I will try not to make so many mistakes, I will not be so cautious as not to act at all, for I know that he who hesitates in irresolution or wavers is lost. I am going to make myself felt today as never before. I am going to ring my life into my work with all the energy I can master. I am resolved not to grope along in a picaresque way any more. I am going to put some more dare into my efforts. I am going to take more chances because I know that people with vigorous initiative can afford to make more mistakes than the hesitators, the waverers, the balancers. I am going to make this day count as no previous day of my life has counted.—Inspiration.

Sunrise in the Tropics

No one who has ever seen a tropical sunrise will forget it; from darkness the world bursts into light. The sun on the Amazon usually rises without clouds and floods everything with radiance; the sunsets are sometimes beautiful, but there are seldom clouds, and the color effects are not as fine as in northern climes.

The banks of the river are full of interest to the canoe voyager, who has every opportunity for observation, as one always paddles close to the shore. Draperies of flowing vines sweep the canoe; at times in some little bay, where the current has no influence, great masses of water plants are in full bloom, bright tillandsias perch in the branches above his head, and orchids look out from the branches, or many times swing in midair. Large patches of "aninas," which look like a tall-stemmed, giant calla lily, full of the great white flowers, make beautiful pictures and over all is a bright blue sky with the cool breeze, which from nine till four always draws up the river.

Composition of Celluloid

Celluloid is an artificial substance made by mixing gum camphor, gun cotton and other substances and then subjecting them to hydraulic pressure. A kind of celluloid was made in 1856 at Birmingham, England, but the invention of ordinary celluloid is usually credited to John W. Hyatt of Newark, N. J., who with his brother developed an important industry. The exact process of celluloid manufacture is a trade secret. One method is roughly as follows: Dry gun cotton is well washed and dried and ground fine under water, after which the water is removed and the mass subjected to great pressure. Then camphor and coloring matter are added. Celluloid is used as a substitute for ivory, bone, hard rubber, coral, leather and many other substances. It is not explosive, but easily lighted and burns rapidly.

Famous Egyptian Statue Was Originally Monolith

The statue of Memnon is situated near Thebes in Egypt. It is sixty feet in height and commonly known as the "Vocal Memnon." It stands on the left bank of the Nile, and with its companion was erected in honor of Amenoph III of the Eighteenth dynasty, in front of his now vanished temple. It was originally a monolith, but, having been overthrown either by Cambyses or by the earthquake of 27 B. C., the upper part was restored by means of sandstone blocks. According to ancient tradition, this statue when first touched by the rays of the rising sun, emitted a musical tone, like the snapping of a harp-string, which the imaginative Greeks concluded was the voice of Memnon greeting his mother Eos (the dawn). Strabo, who visited this statue about 18 B. C., was the first to mention it.

"These sounds . . . were said to be produced either by a priest hidden in the Colossus or by the expansion of assured portions under the influence of the sun's rays. Though many celebrated persons of antiquity—such as Strabo, Aelius, Callus and Hadrian—testified as to hearing this peculiar music, its particular character and cause have never been satisfactorily explained."—Vincent's "Actual Africa."

Motive of Boy's Visit

In the family that had moved next door to the Smiths was a boy about seven years old. The Smiths had a little girl, Virginia, just the same age. Everyone expected the two children to become playmates at once, but almost a week passed before they noticed each other. Then the boy came over to play with Virginia. Virginia, however, immediately went into the house.

"Why, what's the matter, Virginia?" her mother asked. "I thought you had been wanting to play with the new boy."

"Well, I did at first," Virginia admitted, "but I don't care so much about it now, at least, not today."

"Why don't you want to play with him?" mother asked.

"Oh, mamma!" Virginia exclaimed. "He's had a whole week to come over here and hasn't done it. Now I've got a nickel to spend for candy and I don't care whether he comes or not!"—Exchange.

China Wood Oil From Nuts

Tung or China wood oil is an important raw material in the manufacture of varnishes, wall paints and enamels, and is largely used by the linoleum and printing ink industries.

It is nearly colorless, quick drying, elastic, and very tough. The oil is pressed from a nut that grows on tung trees of two species which are hardy, deciduous, and about 20 feet high.

In China it is used chiefly to preserve the thousands of boats that ply the waterways of that country.

For transport, the oil is put in baskets lined with 16 thicknesses of varnished paper, each holding about 130 pounds of oil. These baskets are brought to a small city or market place in the interior, where they are purchased by representatives of exporters.—Detroit News.

Dry-Clean White Dogs

One of the serious objections many persons have to owning a white-haired dog is the trouble of keeping him clean, but the truth is that a white dog is just as easy to keep clean as a dog of any other color, but not by constant washing. The whole secret of keeping a white dog clean is to groom him thoroughly every day. Continuous washings ruin the texture of the dog's hair. To make a white dog look really smart, give him a dry shampoo. Rub him all over with a lump of ordinary whiting or chalk. When he is caked with the powder and looks as if he had been dipped in a bag of flour, brush him vigorously so that all the loose powder will be shaken out and you will find that he will look cleaner than he would if you had given him a wet bath.

Plains of Abraham

The heights near Quebec overlooking the St. Lawrence river took their name from Abraham Martin, a Canadian pioneer of Scotch descent who was a pilot on the St. Lawrence in the time of Samuel Champlain, founder of the city. By a deed authorized by Champlain himself Abraham Martin, who was affectionately known as "Maitre Abraham," obtained a homestead on the heights of Quebec. His herds of sheep and cattle grazed on the tableland along the St. Lawrence which became known among the inhabitants of the town as the Plains of Abraham. In 1905 part of the Heights of Abraham were converted into a Canadian national park.

THE COMMUNITY PICNIC.

Charleroi residents and the people of this community are to be congratulated on the opportunity which will be afforded to spend a day amid the cool recesses and invigorating air incident to famous Kennwood park. The date set for the occasion, Community picnic, is Wednesday, June 11, and everything possible will be done to conduce to the pleasure of the participants. The expense entailed will be small, thus affording everybody a chance to enjoy the outing.

Those directing the affair are also secured before the prevalence of the heated season, due in July or most assuredly in August, sometimes, September.

It has been some time since Charleroians and the people of this vicinity have enjoyed a Community picnic, and it being so far between pleasures of this kind, will make it all the more enjoyable. This picnic to Kennwood is just the thing for tired men and tired women—folk who experience more of work than of play; people who know what the stern realities of life are. To them, it will be an oasis, a happy change of scene and environment, if only for a day. To the youth, boys and girls, young men and young women, they will look forward to the picnic with avidity, knowing that in the outing, an opportunity will be afforded to commingle together in the dance and various other amusements that the park affords, which come only at times that are rather few and far between.

With great gusto then will mother and dad and the children take their well-laden baskets and make a day of it. Happily conceived is this outing, and that its termination will leave memories long to be cherished among the participants, goes without saying. We are all going to the picnic!

Real Meaning of Words
Used Almost Every Day

When a person is in an unhappy predicament—"between the devil and the deep sea"—he is sometimes said to be "between Scylla and Charybdis." According to a Greek legend, these were two monsters, one of which lurked on each side of a narrow sea passage. In steering his vessel in such a way as to escape one of the unlooked-for dangers, he fell into the clutches of the other.

There are two words—panic and hygienic—which we use almost every day. "Panic" is a sudden, unreasoning fear of something. It is derived from the name of the god of shepherds—Pan—whose presence as belurked invisible amongst the thickets or reeds, made itself felt by mortals, and suddenly smote them with a fear so acute that they fled from the unseen "Hygienic" is derived from the name of the goddess of health—Hygieia. How many people realize when they speak of putting an animal into a lethal chamber that the name comes from Lethe—a river on the borders of Hades—whose waters brought forgetfulness to whoever drank of them? And when they describe something as being in a state of "chaos" do they ever think that they are naming the first of all the old heathen gods—Chaos—who ruled over confusion before any other gods existed? "Under his aegis" is another phrase often used. "Aegis" was the name of the shield of the goddess of wisdom, Minerva, and is used to indicate what the shield afforded—protection.

Nicknames Represent
Character of Cities

Unfortunate is the city which in its career has not been dubbed by some nickname or other. Some of the nicknames of cities express admiration; some are frankly deprecatory; others are facetious, and all represent in some measure the character of the city. New York city is blessed with many nicknames, for whatever may be its virtues or its vices, no one will deny that it has character and distinction. Perhaps it is best known as the "Empire City," a sobriquet clearly earned by its premier position in the United States, its wealth, its population, its enterprise and its influence in the empire of the western world.

"Gotham," a name first applied humorously by Washington Irving, comes next. It is an allusion to that old Gotham, the extraordinary stupidity of whose citizens won them the ironic appellation of "The Wise Men of Gotham." Much-abused Brooklyn is pretentiously called "The City of Churches," but is also known as "New York's Bedroom."

Sea Water Affects Glass

Glass is considerably affected by exposure to sea water. The lenses of signal lights, on ships become covered by a thin layer of sea salt which eventually etches into the glass. The United States bureau of standards in an investigation of this subject has found that lead glass was quite susceptible to this corrosive action, while ordinary soda lime glass and boro silicate glass are little affected

Entertaining

said old Rufus Reynolds, of Pottsville.

it." "Him!" musedly replied the proprietor of the local place store. "Must be considerable two administrations of President Monroe up to the time of the campaign for his successor, 1817-1824, was known as the era of good feeling.

Highest Points

The maximum difference in the elevation of land in the United States is 14,777 feet, according to the United States Department of the Interior.
Mount Whitney, the highest point, 14, 501 feet above sea level and a point in Death valley is 276 feet below sea level. These two places are both in California and are only about 100 miles apart. This difference is small, however, as compared with that in Asia, says the Compressed Air Magazine. Mount Everest rises 29,002 feet above sea level, whereas the shores of the Dead sea are 1,290 feet below sea level—a total difference of 30,292 feet. In Europe the difference between the highest and lowest land points is about 15,568 feet.

Noted Group Moves to Establish International Relations School;
To Investigate World Affairs

DR. JOHN H. FINLEY

JOHN W. DAVIS

GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM

A graduate school of international relations will probably be established in this country as the result of a nationwide movement initiated by a group of prominent educators, publicists, lawyers and men who have held high public office in the nation's service.

Prominently identified with the movement for the purpose of which is to promote greater understanding and knowledge of international life are John W. Davis, successor to the late Walter Hines Page as Ambassador to Great Britain, George W. Wickersham, Attorney General
under President Taft, and Dr. John H. Finley, of the New York Times.

A score of other equally prominent figures in national life have given the proposed school their enthusiastic support, including Frank D. Roosevelt, Julius H. Barnes, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, Dr. Albert Shaw, secretary of the American Association of University Professors, Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College, Dr. J. A. C.
Chandler, president of William and Mary, Dr. Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Pennsylvania and Dr.
Arnold Coolidge, of Harvard University.

In outlining the purpose of the school at a recent conference in New York to determine the need for and possibilities of establishing such an institution, Dr. John H.
Finley pointed to the fact that many of our universities have chairs of international law and teach economics history and government, there is no opportunity provided for a comprehensive course of instruction and training in the fundamental facts of international life.

"Such a school," he said,
"would be of especial value to young men who are anxious to enter public life or the diplomatic service. The possibilities of research and publication of results would be of tremendous value to the nation and should prove of world benefit."

Although no definite decision was reached by this conference as to the most desirable location for the proposed school, it was virtually agreed that Johns Hopkins University offered the most advantageous site. It was the unanimous opinion of the conference that such a school would be a fitting memorial to Walter Hines Page, wartime Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

A committee was appointed to investigate the possibilities of carrying out these resolutions.
Headquarters of the committee have been established in the offices of Herbert L. Guttererson, 111
Broadway, New York.

Miss Wills played F. H. Jarvis first, starting uncertainly and serving many double faults. She lost the first two games, then started hitting with great power and won the set 8-6.

The Californian tired somewhat against D. M. Grief, and lost 9-7.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS
THIS EVENING

Washington, June 7.—Congress adjourns tonight for the summer.

The session, the first of the 68th congress, which began amid stormy scenes and raged through six months is going out in the mildest fashion at 7 p. m.

There is some talk of an extra session in September but the outcome will await developments of the campaign. The next regular meeting is scheduled December 1.

The things for which this session will be remembered above all others, will be its "scandal investigations," its dogged opposition to the president and the rise to power of the Progressives.

The session opened last December, a new congress elected in 1922 with Democrats and Republicans practically evenly divided so that the Progressive group held the balance of power.

For days they blocked organization of both houses, refusing to permit the Republicans to elect the speaker in the House until they had obtained a liberalization of the rules. In the Senate, they won their fight to keep Senator Cummins of Iowa, author of the Esch-Cummins railroad bill, from the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee, electing Senator Smith, South Carolina, a Democrat, to the post.

Not until their wishes in this respect prevailed did they permit business to get under way.

The "Teapot Dome" investigation rapidly developed into a major sensation early in the session, and was quickly followed by the authorization of other probes into suspected official corruption. The investigation of former Attorney General Daugherty's conduct of the department of justice, of alleged land frauds in Texas and the internal revenue bureau, of propaganda for the Bok peace prize and the Mellon plan, of Russian-American relations, and a host of minor probes—all got under way and poured out sensations.

In this turbulent legislative scene the wishes of the president received little attention.

Exactly six months ago today President Coolidge outlined his legislative desires in his first message to congress. Now with the end only a matter of hours congress has repudiated his suggestion on nearly every important law made and ignored many of his recommendations.

THE S. S. CONVENTION IS CALLED OFF

Annual Sunday School Fair—County Meeting—Will Not Be Held This Year—State Association to Meet At County Seat

TIME IS OCTOBER MONTH

Place Selected Is Washington—The Decision to Not Hold the County Convention Is Reached At a Recent Meeting of the Board of Directors

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Washington County Sabbath School Association it was decided not to hold the annual county convention this year. The convention was to have been held at Canonsburg, June 10 and 20, the date having been selected at the annual convention held at Washington last year. The state convention will be held in Washington in October and the entertainment of that gathering will be a big task for Washington. On account of this and other reasons it was deemed advisable to call off the annual county meet for this year.

The annual report blanks are being sent to all schools by the secretary and it is urged that these be properly filled out and returned at once so that the statistics for the county can be completed. It is also urged that all schools be prompt in paying their per capita assessment to the county association.

A business session of the county association will be held during the state convention when officers will be elected and other necessary business transacted.

CHURCH BIBLE CLASS ENTERTAINS SCOUTS

(Continued from first page) and a few remarks and a story by the pastor, the boys and men went home feeling that it was good to have been there.

The increase in interest taken by the boys in this movement is little short of marvelous. Less than a year ago, when the effort was first made to organize the Troop, it required three meetings and a lot of personal work before the first four boys could be induced to attend a meeting. Now, the troop quota is filled with three additional special officers, and more than a dozen boys have made application for membership, who have joined other troops. The membership of the troop is made up of the boys from six different churches in the town. Scouting has demonstrated its worth and is now a recognized force for good in our town.
